AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF LAW LIBRARIES

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNUAL MEETING, LOS ANGELES,
CALIFORNIA, JUNE 24TH TO 26TH, 1930

FIRST SESSION
TUESDAY, JUNE 24TH, 8:30 PM.

The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Association was called to order by President Frederick W. Schenk promptly at 8:30 P.M. After a few introductory remarks, he called upon Mr Robert Owens, Librarian of the San Francisco Law Library for an address of welcome. The cordial greeting of Mr Owens was followed by a felicitous and urbane welcome by Mr Thomas W. Robinson, Librarian of the Los Angeles County Law Library and the ceremony of hanging out the latchstring was completed by Mr William R. Roalfe, then Librarian of the University of Southern California Law Library and shortly thereafter to become Law Librarian of Duke University.

To properly acknowledge these hospitable addresses, President Schenk called upon Mr Klapp, Librarian of the Minneapolis Bar Association, who responded to the graciousness of the greetings with an eloquent appreciation of California's charm.

President Schenk then introduced Judge Harry A. Hollzer of the Superior Court, Los Angeles County; Research Director, California Judicial Council; California member of the National Judicial Council Advisory Committee to the Institute of Law at Johns Hopkins University. Judge Hollzer read a paper on "Service in the Law Library." (See p. 119).

President Schenk:

"I am sure we are deeply indebted to Judge Hollzer for this very fine address. The President has not prepared a set paper because of the fact that his thoughts had not crystalized until a few minutes ago. I think if I had read Judge Hollzer's address I could have put my thoughts on paper, but in preparing a program I had in mind exactly what he has brought out—the question of gathering together the type of material which is not in many law libraries, but which is demanded by the new studies for the Judicial Council; in the Department of Education, in the Department of Sociology, and in the Department of Domestic Relations. The demand on the Law Libraries is for something that is not there. We have collected the reports of the courts, their decisions, I mean; we have collected the laws of the legislators, but we have not collected judicial statistics. We have not given adequate thought to the Attorney General's reports, to the opinions of Corporation Counsels, to the judicial reports, to the interpretations of the Bar Associations of their own functions as set forth in the Association reports. We find material in the Association reports which are passed over by indexes because they do not fall within the subject headings of the subject catalog of the library. I refer to the lists of disbarments that appear in some of them. The work of various committees in the preparation of the admission to the bar requirements is material which I am sure our predecessors would never have thought of as being consulted; and I have tried to bring this whole program before you in the form of what other than the practicing attorney and the judge need from the Law Library, and you will note that one of our sessions is given over to points of view from people who are looking to us from the outside. Therefore my thought is one of coming to this conference to learn about the things that are not in a law Library, and Judge Hollzer has cleared up many of the things that were in my mind, but which I couldn't get on paper."

After Mr Robinson and Mr Roalfe had reported for the local Entertainment Committee, the Report of the Secretary of the Secretary and Treasurer was read. (See p. 125).

President Schenk then named Miss Ryan and Mr Mettee to act as the Auditing Committee. He appointed Mr Poole as Chairman of the Nominating committee and Mr Small, the Committee on Resolutions.

Mr S. D. Klapp then presented the Report of the Special Committee on Amendments to the Constitution, named at the Washington Conference to consider the question of establishing a new class of membership to include those who have been active in the work of the Association and to whom it may be deemed fitting that honor should be paid.

REPORT

To the American Association of Law Libraries:

Your Committee appointed on May 17th, 1929, to suggest Amendments to the Constitution regarding the classification of members, offer the following:
RESOLVED, That Section 3 of the Constitution be amended so as to read:-
"There shall be four classes of membership, Regular, Associate, Life and Honorary."

That a new Section 6a be added to the Constitution, to read:-
"The Association may, at any regular meeting by a vote of two-thirds of those present, elect to Life-Membership those who have been members of the Association, but who have retired from active Library Work;
Such members shall be exempt from dues."

That Section 7 be amended to read:-
"The right to holding office and voting shall be restricted to Regular and Life Members."

Respectfully Submitted,
(Signed) E. A. Feazel
S. D. Klapp
E. E. Willever
Committee.

Upon motion, made by Mr Mettee and seconded by Mr Poole, the report of the Committee was unanimously adopted. Mr Klapp was requested to draw up a list of those who should be elected to life membership at this meeting.

Mr Wilbur R. Smith of the Bancroft-Whitney Co was recognized and spoke of the entertainment to be tendered by his Company to the Association on Thursday afternoon.

Upon motion, the meeting ADJOURNED.

"SERVICE IN THE LAW LIBRARY".*

By HON. HARRY A. HOLLZER,

(Judge of the Superior Court, Member and Research Director of Judicial Council of California, and Chairman of National Conference of Judicial Councils.)

There is a familiar advertising slogan which runs somewhat in this vein: "If we please, tell your friends; if not, tell us."

Carrying out the idea expressed in this slogan, I am appearing here as one of your clientele, to offer a few thoughts upon matters which concern us both, and trust that by these suggestions I may serve you.

To those working in the vineyard of the law, this gathering represents a group of friends to whom we of the legal fraternity are greatly indebted.

* Read at opening session of the 25th Annual Conference of the American Association of Law Libraries, June 24, 1930.

It is in a spirit of gratitude and appreciation, therefore, that I have accepted the invitation to appear before you.

At the outset of his report submitted to Yale University, last year, Professor Hicks, the distinguished librarian of its law school, declares the five essentials to a great law library to be:

- (1) Adequate physical facilities as to building and equipment;
- (2) An adequate collection of books continually growing and kept in usable physical condition.
- (3) An appropriate arrangement of the books and a scientific catalogue of them.
- (4) An adequate staff, both numerically and as to education and training, and
- (5) An administrative policy sympathetic to the requirements of the library's clientele.

Further along in the same report, Prof. Hicks makes the additional observation that the Yale Law Library of the future, contemplated in the above summary, visualizes a library complete, in so far as practical considerations warrant, and adequate, not only for the current work of students, but for the researches of scholars.

It is to the consideration of the last mentioned type of service on the part of a law library, and as one of its clientele, that I invite your attention. To be more specific, the views here expressed relate to a particular branch of that service, which, in the judgment of many, has become well nigh indispensable as a result of recent developments in the administration of justice.

It may be said to be axiomatic that a library which would retain its place as a factor in the dissemination of knowledge pertaining to the law, must keep pace with the progress that is being achieved in that field of endeavor.

It will also be recognized that to perform a duty intelligently and proficiently, we should know something about its origin, its nature and its purpose.

What, then, is the background, the significance, the object of this type of service which recent developments in the law have rendered so essential, and which the law library will be called upon to perform in an ever increasing degree?

President Hoover, while Secretary of Commerce, pointed out:

"The aggregate economic loss to the United States through the necessity of referring to courts the trial of disputes arising in the course of trading would stagger the imagination if it could be accurately compiled, both as to the actual cost and the indirect drain upon natural resources. Next to war, commercial litigation is the largest item of preventable loss in civilization."

"No single agency", declared the late Chief Justice Taft, "to induce Congress and State Legislatures to the enactment of measures to improve the administration of the criminal law could be more effective than the practical truth in respect to the condition of the courts in the prosecution of crime, and nothing would more stimulate a demand for greater speed in the disposition of the civil cases in behalf of the litigating public than the truth as to the delays and congestion in the civil dockets."

Addressing the American Bar Association, a few years ago, Prof. Sunderland of the University of Michigan Law School, made this significant comment:

"Why have the English succeeded in developing a system of procedure so much superior to ours? Our reforms in procedure are too slight—too tentative. They have no sweep and scope. We feel our way like blind men who fear to fall. In every other field of human endeavor more efficient methods are being sought with restless eagerness and with no concern for the old equipment which must be scrapped. The legal profession alone halts and hesitates. If it is to retain the esteem and confidence of a progressive age it must itself become progressive. In this respect the Old World has set an example for the New."

At the fiftieth annual meeting of the American Bar Association, distinguished leaders of other professions described the phenomenal advances which had been achieved in their respective callings during the past half century. How striking the contrast presented by the accomplishments of these professions, when compared to the results which have taken place in the field of judicial administration! If the application of methods of scientific research have succeeded in bringing about remarkable progress in practically all other professions, is it expecting too much to believe that a similar approach will produce corresponding results in the law?

Last spring, the National Economic League announced the result of a plebiscite conducted among its membership to determine what they considered the most important public question of to-day. Their answer was to the effect that the administration of justice was the most pressing problem.

At its annual meeting held in May of this year, the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, in approving the report of its Committee on Law Reform, adopted a resolution declaring its conviction that much of the complaint so generally heard of the faults and delays in the administration of justice was warranted, expressed its opinion that a movement should be undertaken by commercial organizations to bring about such changes as should secure a more business-like conduct of civil cases in the courts, and invited the legal associations to participate in this work.

Probably no problem before the public in recent years has received wider comment than the administration of justice. Innumerable articles upon the subject have appeared in the public press, bar association publications, law school journals and lay magazines. It is to-day one of the chief topics for consideration, not only at Bar Association meetings, but virtually at all gatherings having to do with the administration of the law.

Out of this widespread discussion, two important developments have taken place within the past decade. One of these is familiarly known as the judicial council movement—the other as the rule-making power of the courts.

Besides the Conference of Senior Circuit Judges—in other words, the Federal Judicial Council, presided over by the Chief Justice of the United States,—judicial councils to-day exist in twenty states. Furthermore, it is believed that within the next biennium, similar bodies will have been established in two-thirds of the states.

Since its organization, the Judicial Council of Connecticut has had the benefit of the experience, study and judgment of the professors of Yale University Law School. Prof. Clark, Dean of the Law School, is a member of the Judicial Council. Research studies in a number of important subjects relating to the administration of justice, such as summary judgments, discovery, comment on the failure of the accused to testify, and appellate procedure, have been conducted for the Council by members of the faculty and also research assistants and honor students of the law school.

Prof. Edson R. Sunderland, of the faculty of Michigan University School of Law, is a member of the Judicial Council of that state. The Council's research work has been carried on with the aid of the law school, the expense therefor being defrayed out of the school's funds.

The Judicial Council of Massachusetts has likewise conducted research studies in the administration of the law, with the aid of Harvard University Law School, the work being largely carried on by members of the faculty and research assistants.

The Texas Judicial Council includes in its membership the Dean of the Law School affiliated with the state university, and is also receiving the benefit of research work performed by members of its faculty.

The American Judicature Society, a pioneer in promoting the study of judicial administration, is receiving considerable assistance from the Northwestern University Law School.

The Judicial Council of California, in cooperation with the State Bar, will shortly become the beneficiary of similar research work to be carried on by the School of Jurisprudence affiliated with the state university.

Generally speaking, the judicial council may be described as a permanent, official body, whose primary function and responsibility are to study the administration of the law—the judicial machine in action—with a view to recommending remedies for the improvement of the same.

Supplementing these official bodies, we find Bar Associations, Legislative Committees, Crime Commissions, and similar groups engaged in a like task.

Perhaps the most hopeful, if not the most important, movement in the field of legal research is that represented by the recently organized Institute of Law, established by Johns Hopkins University. Tensely expressed, the Institute has undertaken to render in the field of legal research a service analogous to that which this great seat of learning pioneered in the field of medicine, and which it has performed most creditably during the last half century.

Some conception of the magnitude of this program may be gleaned from the fact that the Institute includes a faculty of four professors, and also has the services of six other assistants, all of whom are devoting their attention exclusively to the study of legal problems. No attempt is to be made to train students for the practice of the law. It is exclusively a school of research. At the first Conference held by the Institute, in May, 1930, and to which the Judicial Councils of the various states were invited, four pamphlets discussing various problems pertaining to the survey of litigation being conducted under the auspices of the Institute, were published and given wide distribution.

What, then, are the problems which are thus receiving the attention of so many research agencies, and in respect to which the law library is being called upon, in a constantly increasing degree, to supply statistical data and other adequate information? The following are some of them:

What is the cost of justice? To the litigant? To the state? How is the cost allocated to various types of cases, to various litigants, to various courts?

What is the time element in justice and how does it vary according to the court, the procedure, and the type of case?

Is justice efficiently organized? What procedures are employed and how do they operate? Does justice have routines which facilitate its problems of administration?

What procedure does justice employ to determine the facts from which controversy springs? What procedure does justice employ to assure a just and socially desirable determination thereof?

How is the administration of justice staffed? What training is provided for the bar and bench? What methods of selection, of promotion and of control are provided?

With what types of problems does justice have to deal? How are they classified? How many in each type and of what magnitude?

What technical disposition is made in the varying types of cases and how does the final result relate to other aspects of litigation?

What are the methods of review? How much are they employed in varying types of cases? With what results?

It is not at all uncommon to find articles in the lay magazines debating such questions as the usefulness of the jury in civil litigation, the desirability of non-litigious disposition of accident cases by commissions, and the effect of law upon life, particularly as reflected in divorce litigation, juvenile delinquency, personal injury suits, etc.

In the light of these research activities respecting the administration of the law, it becomes obvious that the development and collection of statistical data and other adequate information pertaining to the administration of justice are of primary importance, both to actual administration and to legal science.

To the research scholar engaged in these studies, the law library is an indispensable laboratory. It is there that he seeks material essential to the performance of his work.

Commenting upon the Yale Law Library's plans for the future, Professor Hicks, in the report previously mentioned, points out that in determining the directions in which its collection of books is to be expanded, consideration has been given, among others, to Attorney-Generals' Reports, Bar Association Reports, and legal statistics and administrative reports.

In that connection, it may not be amiss to note certain observations expressed by Prof. Warner of Harvard University Law School in his "Survey of Criminal Statistics in the United States", made for the National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement. In that survey, Prof. Warner has pointed out that in order to collect federal, state, county and city reports containing criminal statistics, letters were written to all state libraries, attorney generals, and state departments dealing with penal institutions, and, in addition, to thousands of public officials. In all, some twenty thousand communications were sent out. Approximately eight thousand replies and about fifteen hundred books and pamphlets were received.

When we reflect that this survey was confined to only one branch of the law, we begin to grasp some idea of the volume of research material being examined in the course of these studies relating to the administration of justice, and likewise we acquire a better appreciation of the possibilities of the service which the law library may render in this direction.

"I believe emphatically", says Dean Pound of Harvard University Law School, "that a law librarian to-day should be able to prepare bibliographies and study lists and to help bar association committees in their investigations, and even, if time allows, participate therein. A law librarian must be something more than a general librarian in charge of a law library."

"A law library", in the language of Prof. Sunderland of Michigan University Law School, "should have a staff capable of preparing good bibliographies, study lists and outlines of special investigations. It should develop adequate means of making all the material in the library easily and quickly available to anyone who wishes to obtain information on any subject of law. It should make a particular effort to obtain occasional papers, addresses, reports and articles upon legal subjects, and it should develop an adequate technique for making these instantly available for anyone who wants them."

"In the plans which we have been developing for the library services of the Institute of Law", writes Professor Yntema of Johns Hopkins University, "we have had distinctly in mind the desirability of working out an organization within the library which would in the greatest possible measure facilitate the work of those engaged in research. Naturally the development of our library is in a somewhat immature state, but it is already clear that some of the most important services which a library staff can render to the Institute of Law will be by making available material for particular research problems. This involves, not merely the working out of special bibliographies, but even of collecting the material which is desired. To some degree this principle involves a study of the source of current information as to the administration of justice and the correspondence which is necessary to obtain the publications from official bodies of large variety and wide geographical distribution. I feel rather definitely that a progressive library administration of to-day should contemplate a definite and increasing degree of cooperation with those who are engaged in research as to the various aspects of the law."

The recent statement of President Hoover, upon the occasion of the ceremonies in honor of Mr. Edison, suggests a thought rather appropriate to this gathering.

Paraphrasing his words, one might here say:

"Discovery and its practical application are products of long and arduous research. Discovery or invention do not spring full-grown from the brains of men. The labor of a host of men, long and patient investigation, build up the structure of knowledge, stone by stone, particle by particle. This adding of fact to fact some day results in a great advancement, or a great generalization of inestimable value."

"Not what ultimate object we can attain in our short lives", points out Elihu Root, "but what tendencies toward higher standards of conduct in the world we can aid our generation, is the test that determines our duty of service."

In the spirit of that conception of service, we who labor in the field of legal research invite the cooperation of the law libraries of America.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON MEMORIALS OF THE BENCH AND BAR

Your Committee takes great pleasure, in submitting this, our third annual report, showing much progress in this work, of indexing the memorials in our State Reports of the Bench and Bar.

We are particularly pleased, at the splendid cooperation we have had this year, following the most gratifying support last year and especially, the volunteers in open meetings, on the reading of our second annual report, as printed in Law Library Journal 23:20-24, and also pp 3-5 for discussion on this report. As in 1929, this report is written at the same desk in the Library of Congress but we miss the inspiration of meeting so many of our good friends.

Arkansas Mr. Gamble Jordan, Librarian St. Louis Law Library Association, under date of Dec. 20, 1929 hopes to do Arkansas for us.

Colorado Mr. A. J. Small, of this committee under date of Jan. 20, 1930, says: Colorado is already done and ready to be printed.

Delaware The Chairman of this committee did this state on evening Aug 27, 1929 with negative results. Not a single memoir to be found.

District of Columbia The Chairman of this committee did this set on evening of Aug. 27, but the report is not yet printed.

Florida The Chairman of this committee did the most of this set on evening of Aug. 28, 1929, and Miss L. L. Kirschner Librarian of Worcester County Law Library, completed the work, checked the entries and copied them all ready to print.

Hawaii Done by Chairman of this committee May 25, 1930, but not yet checked up and ready for printing.

Idaho Miss Lillyan S. Lee, Librarian Supreme Court Library Boise, Idaho, under date of April 28, 1930 sends on to me list of the memorials all ready to print.

Nebraska Mr. C. B. Letton Librarian, State Library of Nebraska under date of April 28, 1930 sends on a report of memorials to be printed either in Nebraska Law Bulletin, or in Nebraska State Bar Association Reports.

North Dakota Mr. A. J. Small of this committee under date of Jan. 20, 1930 says they will index this state at his law library.

Oklahoma Mr. E. A. Feazel of this committee under date of June 4, 1930 sends material for Oklahoma ready to print.

Oregon Mr. E. N. Gillingham, Librarian of Supreme Court Library, Salem, Oregon under date of April 24, 1930 gives a list of Memorials found in the Oregon reports only 10 in number.

Porto Rico The Chairman of your committee did this set Jan. 28, 1930, and Mr. F. E. Chipman has undertaken to get it into print in the report of the Porto Rico Bar Association.

South Dakota Mr. Small of this committee under date of Jan. 30, 1930 says they will index this state at his library.

Virginia Your Chairman indexed vol 11—131 of this set early in Jan. 1930 and Mr. Lloyd Richards Law Librarian Virginia State Library most kindly agreed to do the first 10 volumes, on account of difference in the numbering, have the notes copied and get the material into print either in the Bar Association reports or in one of the 2 Virginia law periodicals.

Washington Dr. Arthur S. Beardsley under date of May 14, 1930 reports that he has examined all the reports of that state and finds no memoirs—a second negative report.

West Virginia Mr. Feazel of this committee under date of May 29 sends the index of memorials in the West Virginia Reports.

This leaves as follows:

Alabama	218	volumes
Kentucky	228
Louisiana	168
Mississippi	152
Montana	84
Nevada	50
New Mexico	32
South Carolina	151
Utah	68
Wyoming	39

Will not some of you volunteer to help us out? I will do the first 100 volumes each of Alabama and Kentucky, and the first 75 volumes of Mississippi and South Carolina and the first 80 volumes of Louisiana if some one will do the remainder in each of these states and get them into print in the State Bar Association Reports. All of these States less than 100 should find easy bidders. It only takes on an average a minute a volume. For instance I did the 58 volumes of D. C. reports in exactly 58 minutes—I find some of the librarians do not have access to our Law Library Journal, and so I report briefly the process. I usually examine the first pages beyond the title page in Roman paging. If there is anything there to be indexed I make an entry inverted like this; Smith, Hon. Robert pp. v-x. I use the Hon. to distinguish the Judges of the highest court of the state—The memoirs in back are generally in Arabic paging. I also index the Rules of Court, and any and all other matters which are of interest locally.

My record since last report is 431 volumes and this added to 706 volumes of New England Reports gives me a record of 1137 volumes; a very comfortable record of its own.

You can easily and readily see that the chairman of this committee is not asking anyone to do more than he is doing himself. I thank the members of this Committee for the support they have given me and also I thank all of our friends who have so kindly helped us out this year.

Such work in addition to their daily round of work is I am sure doubly appreciated by all of us.

Now a long pull, and a strong pull, and let us make our fourth report, our last report, one of ultimate achievement.

Respectfully submitted

SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON LOOSE-LEAF PUBLICATIONS

In pursuance of the resolution to continue your Committee for another year in order to investigate the possibilities of speeding up Government reports, particularly for law libraries, your Committee has communicated with the same offices which were visited last year, namely, the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Board of Tax Appeals, and the Government Printing Office, and have to report the following:

Mr. Nuber, the Chief of the Printing and Binding Section of the Administrative Division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, reports that their methods and schedules remain the same.

Mr. Tracy, of the Board of Tax Appeals, states that they have received $10,000 in the second deficiency appropriation bill for the purpose of bringing the printing and binding of their decisions up to date, and from now henceforward they hope to have no difficulty in the forwarding of the bound volumes.

Your Committee offered last year to get the mimeographed daily decisions and have them mailed to the law libraries, provided a cooperative arrangement could be entered into in paying for the expense of this service. No request therefor has been brought to the attention of your Committee, but it can still be attended to, if a sufficient number of the members of the Association still desire.

Captain Moorehead, Production Manager of the Government Printing Office, reports no change in their system.

In connection with commercial reporting service, your Committee desires to call attention to the U.S. Supreme Court service which is published by the Legal Research Service at Washington, D.C. This is a loose-leaf publication which keeps the subscribers up to date on the business of the Supreme Court. It furnishes an index by caption and also a subject and numerical index. The cases are then divided into Original or Appellate Docket, and are further sub-divided under the following sections: Appeals and Certificates, and Petitions for Writs of Certiorari. Further sub-divisions show Cases for Argument or Final Decision, the proposed Calendar of the Court for at least three weeks in advance, Orders of the Court and Digest of Opinions.

The U.S. Supreme Court Service for any given term, is issued on or about July 1st, when all cases carried over from the preceding term are presented in a systematic form. The new cases are promptly reported within one week after they are filed. The Orders of the Court and the Digest of Opinions are mailed to subscribers on the day the decisions are rendered. This Service is issued in loose-leaf form, in a five-ring binder, with index sheets, and the material is so arranged, that the reader can follow the cases with the least expenditure of time or effort.

The U.S. Supreme Court Service has been highly recommended by Dean Pound of the Harvard Law School, former Justice McCoy of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and eminent lawyers. The price per term is $40.

In the report rendered last year of your Committee, something was said as to the service rendered by the United States Daily, a newspaper in Washington, concerning its service in relation to Federal taxation. Other legal reporting is rendered by the United States Daily, all of which has been considerably widened since our last report. We beg to present herewith an analysis of this service which has been furnished to us by Mr. Dean Dinwoodey, Chief of the Legal Division of the News Department of the United States Daily.

The service includes the following:

Every opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States.—

These opinions are printed promptly, the most important in the issue of the day following their announcement by the court, and the remaining opinions, even when the court hands down a large number, within the next two or three issues. The full report of this court's opinions is therefore obtainable in The Daily before publication in any other service, and even before pamphlet copies of the opinions are obtainable from the clerk of the court.

Official report of all proceedings of the Supreme Court of the United States.—

During the period the court is in session, The Daily reproduces the official journal of the court of the session for the preceding day. This journal shows the business of the court for its session, and every action taken by it. Cumulatively, these printed journals of the court's sessions constitute a full and complete docket of the business of the court for each term.

Report of all arguments before the Supreme Court of the United States.—

Every hearing of a case on its merits before the court is reported in The Daily, such report giving the nature of the case, the questions involved, the contentions of opposing counsel during their arguments, and the questions and comments of the members of the court during the hearing.

Summaries of all argued cases under advisement before the Supreme Court of the United States.—

During its several recesses of three or four weeks during its terms, The Daily publishes, in issues one week preceding the date upon which the court reconvenes, a summary of all the argued cases which are under advisement awaiting the court's decision. This summary shows the name of the case, the tribunal from which it was appealed, the questions involved therein, the names of counsel who presented the appeal, and a reference to the issue in which report of the argument was published. These summaries advise lawyers and others interested of the nature of cases being considered by the court and questions of law upon which rulings may shortly be awaited.

Full text report of important decisions of the United States Circuit Courts of Appeals and District Courts.—

Selected opinions of these courts on questions in all branches of the law are promptly reported in full text in The Daily, it being, of course, an impossibility within the confines of its pages to print all court opinions. From the mass of opinions not only of these courts, but of the State courts of last resort, the important, significant and outstanding opinions are selected for publication in full text. Opinions establishing precedents in all fields of the law, opinions applying rules of law not fully established to novel, but not trivial, situations, opinions involving the validity and construction of new statutes, and opinions, for instance, of particular interest to business and industry, are particularly considered suitable for full text publication.

Summary of all decisions of the United States Board of Tax Appeals.—

In each issue of The Daily following their announcement by the Board of Tax Appeals are published syllabi, prepared by the Board, of all its opinions and rulings. Cases, the opinions in which will later be published in full text, are designated.

Full text report of important decisions of the Board of Tax Appeals.—

A complete report is promptly made of those opinions of the Board constituting precedents in its interpretation and application of the Federal Revenue Acts.

Official reports of Treasury Department on matters of taxation.—

Official notice of all credits, refunds and abatements of federal taxes are published in The Daily. The Daily's correspondent also is present at all press conferences with Treasury officials and reports their comments and observations. The Daily publishes articles on the finances of the Federal Government, fiscal legislation, tax collections, etc.

Opinions of General Counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.—

All opinions of the general counsel made public are printed in The Daily, including his interpretation of the Revenue Acts.

Rulings of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in re taxation matters.—

These rulings, including those of the income tax unit, estate tax unit, miscellaneous tax unit, are printed in full text in The Daily. Also, from time to time, are printed instructions of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to collectors and agents.

Report of proceedings and decisions of Court of Claims of the United States.—

The official proceedings of this court, showing the cases presented, those argued, and their disposition by the court, are regularly and promptly published for each session, informing the lawyer of the business transacted by the court in cases involving claims, including suits for refund of taxes, against the United States.

Full text of important decisions of Court of Claims.—

Complete reports are printed in The Daily of selected opinions of this court, the same policy above noted as to opinions of the Circuit Court of Appeals, District Courts, and State courts of last resort being pursued. In selecting opinions of this court for publication, particular emphasis is placed on opinions in tax cases.

Report of activities of the Department of Justice.—

Articles are regularly published on the activities of this Department, including the Federal Government's prosecution of tax, prohibition, and particularly anti-trust cases, among other things.

Official reports of patent suits filed in the Federal courts and the disposition of such suits.—

The official notices of patent infringement suits and their disposition compiled, as required by statute, by the Patent Office are printed each week in The Daily informing owners, sellers and users of patented articles of their rights.

Full text report of important rulings of Patent Office.—

Complete reports of selected rulings by the Board of Appeals of the Patent Office in applications for patents and of the Commissioner of Patents on applications for registration of trade marks are printed in The Daily.

Full text report of important decisions of Supreme Court and Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.—

Selected opinions of these Federal courts are published in The Daily, the policy as to selection being the same as to the opinions of other courts. These courts are peculiarly concerned with cases testing the rights of Government agencies in the enforcement of new statutes and the regulation of business, the progress and result of which important litigation is reported, together with the decisions terminating it.

Report of proceedings of Court of Customs and Patent Appeals.—

The official journal of this court, being the appellate tribunal for the Patent Office and Customs Court, is regularly printed in the issues of the day following each session of the court. The report of decisions included in these journals include statements showing the nature of the case and the precise decision therein.

Full text report of important decisions of Court of Customs and Patent Appeals.—

Complete reports of selected opinions of this court are promptly printed. The statements relative to the policy of selecting opinions of other courts for full text publication are applicable to the opinions of this court.

Summary of important decisions of the United States Customs Court.—

A short summary of important decisions of this court on the import duties applicable to certain merchandise, and the value of such merchandise are daily reported. Opinions stating general principles of customs law are printed in full text.

Activities and decisions of Interstate Commerce Commission.Activities and decisions of Federal Radio Commission.Activities and decisions of Federal Trade Commission.Full text report of important decisions of courts of last resort in the several States.—

Complete reports of important, significant and outstanding opinions of the highest State courts are promptly and regularly printed in The Daily. From the mass and chaff of the many opinions of these courts are selected opinions constituting precedents in the fields of the law. Experienced lawyers familiar with the law, and who have been reading and digesting court opinions for many years, make the selection.

News reports of filing, progress and disposition of important litigation in all the Federal and State courts.—

The report in The Daily of litigation does not begin with the determination of such litigation, but the initiation, and progress of important test cases are regularly reported.

Summaries of opinions of the several courts not printed in full text.—

In each issue of The Daily, under the heading "Current Law", are printed syllabus paragraphs giving the rulings of the several courts throughout the country, and the law announced in court opinions, shortly after the opinions are handed down. By this device, The Daily is enabled to promptly advise attorneys and others interested of the disposition of litigation. Summaries of many opinions which are not sufficiently important to print in full text or for which available space is lacking are thus provided the subscriber.

Reports of rulings of State Attorneys General.—

Selected opinions of the Attorneys General of the several States are reported in full text. Other opinions are summarized. Particular attention is paid opinions interpreting and applying new legislation regulating and affecting business and industry.

Full text of important decisions of State Tax Commissions.—

Complete reports of rulings of state tax commissioners and commissions are printed in The Daily, giving the interested person the interpretation and application of tax legislation, by which taxpayers may be guided in the payment of taxes.

News reports of proceedings before and decisions of above commissions.—

Full text report of important decisions of State Regulatory Commissions.—

Complete reports of selected rulings of the many State agencies regulating and supervising public utilities, railroads, insurance companies, banks, employment agencies, and corporations in general are printed in The Daily.

News reports of proceedings before and decisions of above agencies.

In addition to the above, The United States Daily regularly and promptly reports in each daily issue the activities of the many other agencies of the forty-nine Federal and State Governments in the field of legislation and administration.

Having exhausted as far as we know the sources of information concerning speeding up of Government reports, loose-leaf service and all commercial publications relating to Governmental business of special interest to law libraries, your Committee begs to be discharged.

RICHARD CRUMP

Richard L. Crump, for the last fifteen years librarian of the New York County Lawyers' Association, died on April 21, at his home, 135 Lafayette Street, Brooklyn. He had recently supervised the removal of the library from 165 Broadway to the new quarters of the association on Vesey Street. During his régime the library increased from a small collection to 40,000 volumes. Mr. Crump, a bachelor, is survived by two sisters, living in Amherst, Mass., where burial took place.

An Appreciation from Gilbert D. Lamb

Hundreds of new members of the New York County Lawyers' Association were keenly shocked at the announcement of the death of its librarian, Mr. Richard L. Crump.

Every patron of the library of that association will feel, I am sure, a personal loss.

Mr. Crump's industry, his wide information as to all library matters, his outstanding courtesy, and his generous eagerness on all occasions, without the asking, to be of the utmost service to those using the library, are known to us all.

The late William A. Purrington, at the time chairman of the Library Committee, well described Mr. Crump as one of the best assets of our association.

Mr. Crump's readiness to serve made it always a real pleasure to visit the library, and it will be a difficult task to replace him. I know that I express the heartfelt appreciation of the pleasing personality of Mr. Crump by all who had occasion to come in contact with him.

From a letter by the class secretary:

"After leaving college, Crump, never rugged, suffered a prolonged period of ill health, but he recovered and enjoyed a life of devoted service to the work of his calling. His first position was with the Astor Library in New York, and in 1903 he became assistant librarian of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. In 1908, ill health forced him to resign. About fifteen years ago he was made librarian of the New York County Lawyers' Association, whose interests he served with rare ability and devotion up to the time of his death.

"Crump came from an old Connecticut family, and his home was in New London when he came to Williams. He had for years made New York and its residential suburbs his home. He never married and he leaves two sisters, the Misses Crump of Amherst.

"Richard Crump was one of the outstanding personalities of the class—modest to a degree, shrinking, kindly, tender in his sympathies, and a deep student. We shall always remember him with a real affection."

JAMES N. MOORE

Through the kindness of Miss Irma A. Watts, Reference Librarian of the Pennsylvania Legislative Reference Bureau, we are able to print the following extract from the Harrisburg Evening News, Oct. 18, 1930:

"James N. Moore, 71 years old, chief of the Legislative Reference Bureau since its organization in 1909, died last night at his home, 228 North Second street.

A fall, which he suffered on Monday, was the direct cause of his death, it was explained, although he had been ill for some time. He was at his post in the Capitol a week ago. On Monday, being a holiday, he stayed at home. When he fell he suffered concussion of the brain. Yesterday he lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he had not recovered.

Born in Butler County, in Slippery Rock Township, he attended schools of Butler County and later Grove City College. He taught school for a little while after his graduation and then entered the law office of former Judge McCandles, of Butler County, where he read law. He was admitted to the Butler County Bar in 1892 and he practiced law, until 1909.

Elected a member of the State Legislature in 1895, he came to this city. He was re-elected in 1897 and 1899. It was during the latter session that he led a group of legislators to vote against Matthew S. Quay's appointment to the Senate.

Later he became journal clerk and then assistant chief clerk of the House of Representatives. In 1909, when the bureau was established, Governor Stuart appointed him as the chief. He was reappointed by Governors Tener, Brumbaugh and Sproul, but in 1923 the bureau was made an agency of the Legislature and its members unanimously elected him. He was unanimously re-elected to the post by the Legislatures of 1925, 1927 and 1929.

He was married to Miss Alice Wick, of Butler. After her death, he married Miss Maude H. Sutton, daughter of John and Maria Melching Sutton, of Butler, in 1900.

Brief funeral services will be held at 7.30 o'clock tonight at the residence. The Rev. Dr. C. Waldo Cherry, pastor of the Pine Street Presbyterian Church, of which he was a member, will officiate.

Further services will be held at Butler at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Moore's sister, Mrs. W. E. McClung. Burial will be in the Butler Cemetery.

Surviving him are his widow; two brothers, John G. Moore, of Butler, and William R. Moore, of Slippery Rock, and one sister, Mrs. Lawson Mallory, of Berkeley, Calif.

Augustus F. Daix, Jr., president pro tem. of the Senate and A. B. Hess, speaker of the House, today designated those State Senators and Representatives from the nine adjoining counties as a committee to attend the funeral services of Mr. Moore at Butler Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Senator William H. Earnest, of this county, was included also as a member."

Miss Watts writes: "There were about fifty members and senators who attended his funeral and when the casket was borne from the house, it was preceded by the mace of the House of Representatives, draped in black, carried by a sergeant-at-arms, while the members formed an escort of honor on either side of the walk from the porch to the street. Thus he was buried with full legislative honors.

It is surely a great loss."

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF LAW LIBRARIES

(As Amended to June 24, 1930.)

CONSTITUTION

Section 1. The name of this Association shall be American Association of Law Libraries.

Section 2. The object shall be to develop and increase the usefulness and efficiency of law libraries.

Section 3. There shall be four classes of membership—regular, associate, life and honorary.

Section 4. Any person officially connected with a law library, state library or with a general library having a separately maintained law section, may become a regular member upon payment of the annual dues.

Section 5. Persons not connected with law libraries may be elected to associate membership at the discretion of the executive committee.

Section 6. The Association may at any regular meeting, by a vote of two-thirds of those present, elect honorary members who shall be exempt from dues.

Section 6a. The Association may, at any regular meeting, by a vote of two-thirds of those present, elect to life-membership those who have been members of the Association, but who have retired from active library work. Such members shall be exempt from dues.

Section 7. The right of holding office and voting shall be restricted to regular and life members.

Section 8. In all matters of business each regular member shall be entitled to one vote.

Section 9. The officers shall consist of a president, a vice-president, a second vice-president, a secretary and a treasurer, all of whom shall be elected by ballot at the annual meeting, and serve until their successors are appointed.

Section 10. There shall be an Executive Committee of nine consisting of three members who shall be elected at the annual meeting and serve until their successors are appointed, the last retired President, and the officers mentioned in Section 9. The Committee may act officially by correspondence addressed to the secretary.

Section 11. Vacancies through non-acceptance, resignation or death shall be filled by the executive committee.

Section 12. The duties of these several officers shall be those ordinarily assigned to said officers in similar associations. Expenditures not authorized by the Association may be made only with the approval of the executive committee.

Section 13. An annual meeting of the Association shall be held at the same time and place as the annual meeting of the American Library Association, unless there are special reasons for holding it elsewhere; and in that event the call for the meeting shall be issued in the same manner as provided in Section 14 for special meetings.

Section 14. Special meetings may be held at such times and places as the Executive Committee may elect or the association direct.

Section 15. Any by-law may be repealed, amended or suspended by a three-fourths vote of those present and voting at any meeting of the Association.

Section 16. This constitution may be amended in the manner herein provided. Notice of any amendment shall be filed with the secretary at least sixty days before a regular meeting of the Association, and notice thereof shall be sent by the secretary to the members of the Association at least thirty days prior to said meeting. Such amendments shall be submitted at an annual meeting of the Association, and any member not present thereat may file his vote thereon with the secretary and the same shall be counted as though he were present and voting. If three-quarters of the votes of the members present and voting at such meeting, and of the votes filed as above provided, be in favor of such amendment, it shall stand adopted.

BY-LAWS

Section 1. The annual dues of regular and associate members, except library assistants, shall be $3.00, and each member shall receive the Law Library Journal as a part of said membership. The year for dues shall begin on July 1st in each and every year. In billing annual dues to regular and associate members, except library assistants, the Treasurer shall, however, send a bill making it optional with the member whether he shall pay $3.00 or $5.00 for the year. The dues of library assistants shall be $2.00 per year.

Section 2. Members failing to pay dues for two successive years shall be dropped from membership.
